Hunger for Truth: The Rhea Clyman Story

Journalist Rhea Clyman traversed the Soviet heartland in 1932 and witnessed a horrible crime, one that the Soviet authorities would try to hide for more than 50 years. Hunger For Truth: the Rhea Clyman Story takes us on a remarkable journey with this courageous young reporter. Clyman, then 28 years old set out by car from Moscow and drove through Eastern Ukraine, where she witnessed the man-made famine known as the Holodomor. She was one of the first journalists to report the story, and her vivid accounts remain an invaluable testament to the starvation and suffering that ravaged the Ukrainian countryside.

Produced by Canada-Ukraine Foundation Holodomor National Awareness Tour
Directed by Andrew Tkach
50 minutes in length

Stalin’s Secret Genocide

A short documentary video featuring seven leading historians introducing the Holodomor and its cover-up by the Soviet Regime of 1932 – 1933.

Produced by Canada-Ukraine Foundation Holodomor National Awareness Tour
Written and Directed by Andrea Chalupa
16 minutes in length

https://holodomortour.ca/product/stalins-secret-genocide-dvd/

Reflection on Stalin’s Soviet Regime and The Holodomor

Malcom Muggeridge, traveled to Moscow in 1932 – 1933 where he was a correspondent for the Manchester Guardian. Muggeridge investigate reports of the Great Feminine (HOLODOMOR) in Ukraine, travelling there without obtaining... permission of the Soviet authorities. His reports were sent back to The Manchester Guardian in British diplomatic bags, thus evading Soviet censorship. The Ukrainian Canadian Research and Documentation Centre interviewed Malcom Muggeridge in 1982 for its 1983 award-winning documentary film Harvest of Despair.

Produced by Ukrainian Canadian Research and Documentation Centre
30 minutes in length