

Unknown European History

85th Anniversary of Holodomor 1932-1933

85 years ago, the communist regime undertook a massive genocide operation on millions of Ukrainians in the heart of Europe.

A nation mostly relying on agriculture was forced to starve to death. Ukrainians gave this tragedy the name of 'Holodomor'.

On the occasion of the 85th anniversary of this centenary tragedy of European history we would like to inform the broad public more in depth about the actual occurrences in 1932-1933, which were long considered to be a taboo-topic.

The famine in Ukraine was no natural catastrophe, but rather organized terror with a social and national line of attack.

It is hard to grasp that one of the most severe disasters of the 20th century remains largely unknown. After 85 years we aim at educating the German public about Holodomor, the crimes of Stalin's Soviet regime and achieve international acclaim for the execution of genocide.
